Dear Cynthia,

Thank you for your email message. In light of the JAMS recognition (in your email below of 3:48 pm, today) of the jurisdictional issues at play, including that Judge Alsup will be hearing argument on relevant jurisdictional issues on April 27, Waymo LLC (the named respondent in the putative arbitration matter that is the subject of these emails) respectfully suggests that it would be premature to identify “strikes” and to provide a ranking of remaining arbitrator candidates at this time.

If JAMS disagrees, Waymo LLC would of course be willing to provide its “strike” list and its resulting priority rankings ASAP. Please let us know if JAMS would prefer that Waymo LLC do so.

In the meantime, Waymo LLC respectfully reserves all rights and arguments regarding the lack of JAMS jurisdiction over the arbitration matter that has been assigned matter number 1110020715.

Sincerely,
Quinn Emanuel

Jay Neukom
Counsel for Waymo LLC

Dear Counsel,

JAMS has reviewed the objection and understands the matter of jurisdiction is being heard on April 27, 2017. Please advise the outcome upon finding out the ruling.

Thank you,

Cynthia

Dear Ms. Victory,

Apologies for any confusion. Claimants' counsel was copied on my original email using their team email alias Claimant's counsel previously asked us to use that particular address for email service of documents. I'm copying Mr. Gonzalez individually on this email to confirm.

Best Regards,

Dear JAMS,

Please see attached Respondent Waymo LLC's Objection to JAMS Jurisdiction in the above-referenced matter. Waymo makes this submission without waiving – and without prejudice to – its objection to the jurisdiction of this tribunal over the issues raised by Claimants' improperly-filed arbitration demand.

Counsel of record in the pending Northern District of California litigation are carbon-copied on this email.

Best Regards,

Grant Margeson
